A POOLED EMPLOYER PLAN - YOUR 401(K) SOLUTION

Employees expect that their employer will provide an easy and convenient way for them to prepare for retirement. But sponsoring a retirement savings plan can be a burden as well as a liability.

If you sponsor your own plan, that means you have a heavy administrative burden. As a plan sponsor, you must (1) maintain all plan documents and update them as regulations change, (2) calculate and remit all employee deferrals and employer contributions in a timely fashion, (3) identify newly eligible employees and provide all required plan notices including the Plan's Summary Plan Description, (4) process all new enrollments and deferral changes, (5) process all distribution and loan requests, (6) process election changes and fund transfers, (7) perform all required annual compliance testing and government filing, and (8) conduct an annual audit if you have more than 100 participants.

In addition to these administrative tasks, as a plan sponsor you are also a fiduciary to the plan. This means that you must (1) develop an Investment Policy Statement, (2) regularly monitor the plan's investment menu and replace funds that no longer meet the plan's fiduciary criteria, and (3) regularly review the plan's providers and associated plan expenses.

Many companies simply do not have the in-house expertise or personnel to perform these functions. Often, the administration of the plan ends up last on a long to-do list. Unfortunately, qualified retirement savings plans are heavily regulated and poor administration can result in complicated and expensive correction measures.

The good news is that you can become an adopting employer of a pooled employer plan. A pooled employer plan is a qualified retirement savings plan that is sponsored by a Pooled Plan Provider. Other companies join the plan as adopting employers. Although it is a single plan from the perspective of the federal government, each company that adopts the plan is able to specify its own plan provisions. As a result, you get the best of both worlds. You can offer a 401(k) to your employees that meets your company's unique objectives, but because you are not the plan sponsor you won't have the hassle and responsibility of sponsoring your own plan.

AS AN ADOPTING EMPLOYER OF A
POOLED EMPLOYER PLAN, YOU GET THE BEST OF BOTH

It's not only easier, but it's less expensive as well. By becoming an adopting employer of our pooled employer plan, you will enjoy big plan pricing and the bigger you are the more buying power you have. In contrast, smaller plans command less buying power and typically must pay higher fees. Smaller plans are also typically required to utilize expensive share classes or must choose among limited, proprietary investment options. If your company has over 100 participants, you can also avoid the costs of an independent audit by joining a pooled employer plan. The pooled employer plan files one Form 5500. As a result, a single audit covers the assets of all the adopting employers.

Joining a pooled employer plan offers your company a cost-effective retirement savings plan solution for your employees.
